

Riverside Community College District

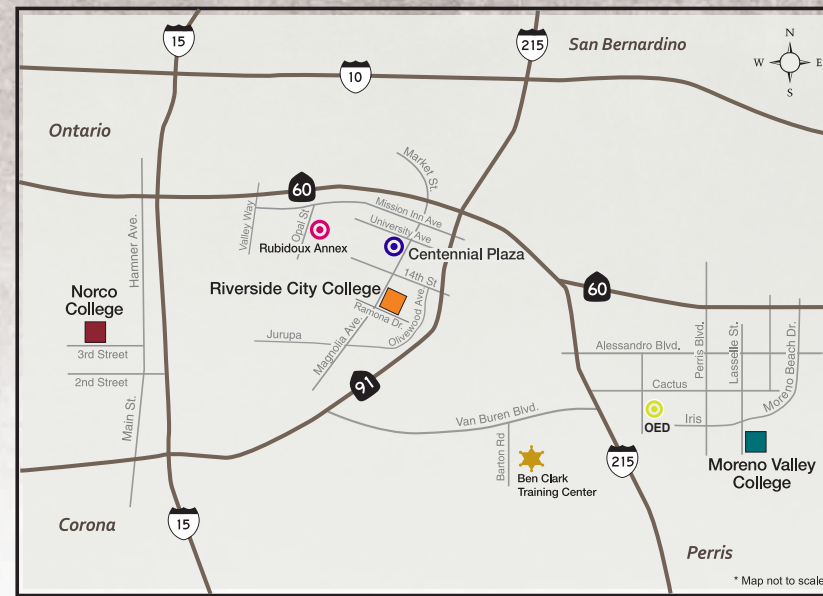

The Riverside Community College District (RCCD) is the fifth-largest and seventh-oldest community college district in California. From its origin in 1916 as a single college, RCCD has grown and now serves over 57,000 students in the Inland Southern California region annually.

Riverside City College opened in 1916 to serve the region and in 1991 Moreno Valley and Norco campuses were established. Both campuses gained accreditation as individual colleges and became the 111th and 112th community colleges in California in 2010 as RCCD completed its transition from a single college, multi-campus district to a three-college system.

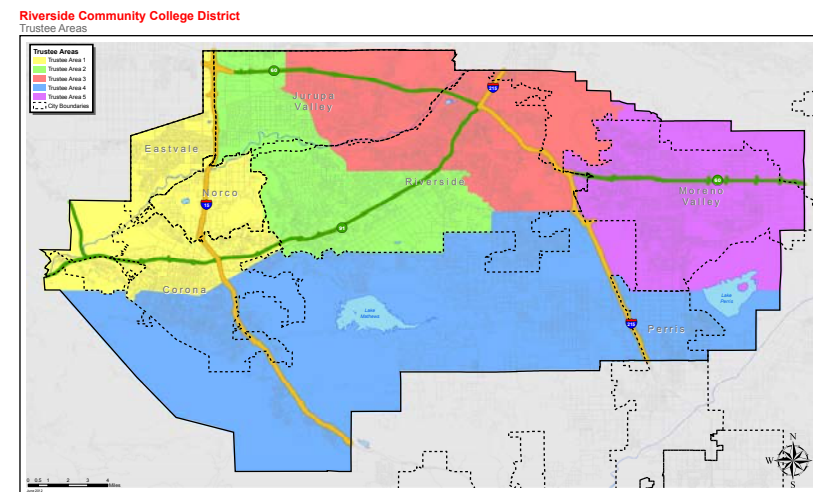

RCCD Highlights:

- RCCD serves a diverse student body reflecting the surrounding population and workforce. In 2016-17, 60% of students were Hispanic, 21% were Caucasian, 8% were African-American, 5% were Asian-Pacific Islanders, and 6% were other ethnicities. All three RCCD colleges are designated as Hispanic Serving Institutions.
- RCC and Norco College were two of the 20 community colleges selected to participate in the California Guided Pathways Project, a venture designed to substantially increase degree and certificate completion.
- RCCD is one of the top 25 employers in Riverside County, with more than 2,300 employees.
- The residents of RCCD voted in 2004 to support Measure C, a $350 million bond measure. Since its passage, improvements have been made at each college and District through upgraded classrooms, labs, electrical systems, technology infrastructure and acquired, constructed and repaired classrooms and facilities.
- In 2016-17 the Grants Office assisted RCCD colleges in securing nearly $22 million in state, federal, and non-profit grant funding. These awards advance the colleges through the creation of programs, enhance student support services, and partnerships to meet students' needs and create partnerships with industry and the surrounding community.
- The RCCD Office of Economic Development advances business economic growth in western Riverside County by assisting businesses and promoting workforce competitiveness through high quality training and services. The Office of Economic Development, located adjacent to March Air Reserve Base, includes three divisions: Center for International Trade Development, Procurement Assistance Center and Customized Training Solutions.
